

What Is

IMMUNOENERGY ?

ImmunoEnergy is a dietary supplement consisting of essential nutrients, including vitamins, minerals and an All-Natural botanical blend of extracts that help promote the wellness of the body's immune system.

It is well known that antioxidants maintain cell integrity and Vitamin C builds strong bones. It is also fact that a healthy diet and proper weight are important factors in maintaining a healthy immune system.

Although diet and weight are the key to ensuring a healthy immune system, ImmunoEnergy is an excellent adjunct supplement that can be used.

ImmunoEnergy's ingredients are derived from of all natural extracts that produce a synergistic effect when combined in specific formulation. This combination helps boost the three main functions of the immune system; thereby, supporting an alert and defense driven immune system.

First, the synergistic effects assists the body in producing an encapsulation effect whereby the body coats the surface of microbes and toxins for easier identification by macrophages and neutrophils (smaller macrophages) — the body's cells used to isolate and destroy foreign or invading microbes and toxins.

Second, stimulating the messengers sent by the body's macrophages, increasing the body's awareness. A re-enforced immune system can release more macrophages to intercept and combat the foreign or invading microbes or toxins and their pneumonia type conditions and symptoms characteristic of infections. Increases of 20% to 50% in the phagocytosis stage (the destroying and eating of microbes) have been noted.

Finally, further strengthening of the body's clearance of invading microbes and toxins through the reticuloendothelial system can be achieved with a program of a good diet, weight control and ImmunoEnergy as a supplement.

Typically, an infection attacks on two to three fronts when infiltrating the body by way of secretion of toxins that target the immune messengers and work to reduce efficient vitamin absorption, weakening the immune system.

Initial lab testing in pigs, revealed increased levels of messengers, as well as, increased levels of vitamins in tissue analysis. Farm applications have shown a 30% decrease in mortality from other pathenogenic infections.

per month prior to November, 2003. The patients were riddled with various diseases, including TB, HIV, Cholera and Anthrax.

An altered formulation was administered at 0.05% - 0.1% of the patients' food intake (1-4 grams per day). Along with dietary and sanitation changes within the hospital, ImmunoEnergy was administered as an adjunct supplement to these patients. Monitoring commenced November, 2003 to see if the patients' immune systems could be energized to support their bodies and more efficiently fighting off the pathogens. The test market is still ongoing and test results thus far have shown that the mortality rate fell from >300/month to an average of 4 patients expiring per month from their ailments.

Additionally, a liquid formulation is being tested as an additive to drinking water and a balanced diet in several schools in Africa, with positive results supporting improved and strengthened immune systems. ImmunoEnergy has been used in Africa and Europe for five years with great success. With a balanced diet, ImmunoEnergy has been found to be a positive supplement at re-enforcing the body's fight against rhino virus,

SARS, Influenza A, HIV, Tuberculosis, Cholera, Listeria, Salmonella, Legionella and Staphylococcus.
